Too bad he didn't rape an altar boy; we would've never heard about that business as usual.

When people say they want more diversity, I don't think this is what they had in mind. A straight priest? What will think of next, a married bachelor? Here's the story (from Daily Mail):

> Rev Travis Clark, 37, was arrested on September 30 over the alleged sex act at his church. He allegedly had threesome with dominatrices, Mindy Dixon and Melissa Cheng. The unholy trio was discovered by a passerby who noticed the lights at Saints Peter and Paul Roman Catholic Church were on after hours and called police. Dixon, 41, and Cheng, told officers that they were filming 'roleplay' with Clark. They were arrested on obscenity charges because they were in view of public. After arrest, Clark, who was ordained in 2013, was suspended from archdiocese

Now I'm not defending this, as though I care. But isn't it amazing that you can rape altar boys for decades with the active cover-up of bishops and the Vatican, yet you have consensual sex with adult women (which by contrast, isn't illegal) and you get immediately suspended and arrested? Our society is simultaneously degenerate in that it promotes bizarre sexual practices, but for the 99% of us horny fuckers, we get puritan levels of prudery. Kamala Harris must be proud.
